PAUL L. SNYDER

*Chairman of the Board
Owner
Buffalo Braves Basketball Club*

It's doubtful if any team owner in the National Basketball Association has pursued the league championship more intensively than Paul Snyder.

Now in their sixth NBA season, the Braves have shown remarkable improvement during the last two years, and a good share of their success can be directly attributed to Snyder's intense desire to bring a winner to Buffalo.

He has spared no expense in gathering some of the finest talent ever assembled on one professional basketball team. With the likes of Bob McAdoo, Jim McMillian, Ernie DiGregorio, Gar Heard, Randy Smith, Jack Marin, and rookie Tom McMillen, the Braves unquestionably rank among the top two or three teams in the league talent-wise.

And while he has a personal interest in seeing his team win an NBA title, Snyder feels it would be a well deserved reward for the fans in Buffalo who have been so loyal to the Braves since their entrance into the league in 1970.

A native of Mansfield, Pa., Snyder attended the State University at Buffalo where he was a member of the varsity football and wrestling teams.

Afterward, he launched what was to become a highly successful business career, which along with his social and recreational interests, were to link him closely with the Western New York community.

In 1958 he founded Freezer Queen Foods Inc., and before long the company was the largest processor of frozen meat products in the United States. When Freezer Queen merged with the Nabisco Co., in 1970, Snyder became Nabisco's largest shareholder, and a corporate officer of the firm. He continues as president and board chairman for Freezer Queen.

Snyder has long been an advocate of family recreational activities, and it was his interest in this field that led to his founding of Snyder's Darien Lake Resort, a family recreation area near Corfu, N. Y., which attracts thousands of persons annually. The resort is the largest facility of its kind in upper New York State.

A member of the National Basketball Association's Board of Governors, Snyder also is a trustee and member of the University of Buffalo foundation, and a member of the board of directors of Liberty National Bank and Trust Co.

FRANK J. COONEY

President

A new face in the Buffalo Braves' front office this year is that of Frank Cooney, who became president of the ballclub in late July succeeding Paul L. Snyder. Cooney is also a member of the team's board of directors.

The 34-year-old Norwich, N. Y., native was elevated to the presidency after serving in high level positions with Freezer Queen Foods Inc. for the last five years.

During that time he worked closely with Snyder who remains as chairman of the Braves' board of directors as well as president and chairman of Freezer Queen Foods.

Said Snyder when announcing Cooney's appointment, "Frank has proven to be an extremely competent businessman. His background and contacts within the community should strengthen our entire organization."

A 1964 graduate of Syracuse University where he received a B.S. degree in accounting, Cooney began his career with Pittsburgh Plate Glass. Initially, he was in the firm's controller training program at Cumberland, Md., and later served as assistant to the controller of the Glass Division at the Pittsburgh general office.

He joined MOOG Inc., of Buffalo in 1966 as an accountant, and within four years was promoted to controller of the Hydra Point Division.

Cooney's association with Freezer Queen Foods began in 1970 when he was appointed corporate controller. He served in numerous positions including vice president of finance and administration, and later became one of two senior vice presidents. Immediately before assuming the presidency of the Braves he was president of Freezer Queen Foods of Canada Ltd., in Toronto, and a member of the firm's board of directors.

Cooney served as president of the Buffalo chapter of the Planning Executives Institute from 1973-74, and still is a member of the board of trustees.

Frank, his wife, Micki, and their two children, Kelli, 7, and Frank Jr., 9, reside in Clarence.

BOB MacKINNON

General Manager

Bob is back in the Braves' fold after an absence of one season during which he was head coach of the American Basketball Association Spirits of St. Louis.

He's happy to be in Buffalo again, but Bob won't soon forget his first season as a head coach in the professional ranks. Coming to a team heavily laden with rookies, MacKinnon's coaching skills helped the Spirits reach the ABA playoffs. Then, they sprung one of the major upsets in sports history by eliminating the defending ABA champion New York Nets in five games in an Eastern Division semi-final series.

Regarded as an exceptional judge of basketball talent, Bob was directly involved in helping to make the Braves one of the strongest teams in the NBA after joining the organization during the summer of 1972.

It was on his recommendation that Buffalo drafted such talented players as guards Ernie DiGregorio and Ken Charles, and 6-11 forward Tom McMillen, who is a rookie with the Braves this season.

Along with scouting college players, MacKinnon's responsibilities include assisting in player selections during the draft, scheduling, and participation in player negotiations.

The 48-year old Buffalo native was head coach at Canisius College for 13 years before coming to the Braves in 1972. He also served as the school's athletic director.

His most memorable season at Canisius was in 1962-63 when the Golden Griffins recorded a 19-7 mark and finished second in the National Invitation Tournament. In recognition of his outstanding work at Canisius that season Bob was selected as eastern collegiate basketball coach of the year.

MacKinnon starred in football, basketball and baseball at Buffalo's McKinley High School, and also excelled in the latter two sports during his undergraduate days at Canisius. He later played professional baseball in the Brooklyn Dodgers' organization and pro basketball with the former Syracuse Nationals.

Bob and his wife, Norma, have five children — Kim, 18; Pam, 16; Nancy, 15; Bobby, 14 and Lisa, 8.

JACK RAMSAY

Head Coach

In Jack Ramsay, the Buffalo Braves have one of the most competent and colorful coaches in the National Basketball Association.

Few expansion teams in the history of professional sports have attained prominence as rapidly as have the young Braves, and a good deal of the credit must be attributed to the man who has guided them to 91 victories in the last two seasons.

After joining the NBA in 1970, Buffalo struggled through two disastrous years and then Ramsay arrived on the scene. Before long, the Braves were battling the league's established teams on nearly even terms.

Buffalo continued its losing ways in his initial season in 1972-73 despite the presence of a great young player by the name of Bob McAdoo.

Flashy playmaker Ernie DiGregorio, Jim McMillian, Gar Heard and Jack Marin joined the ballclub the next season, and with Ramsay calling the shots, Buffalo suddenly emerged as an NBA power, winning 42 games and becoming the first of the 1970 expansion teams to earn a playoff berth.

Last season, Ramsay's coaching prowess got a real acid test as starters McMillian, Heard and DiGregorio were sidelined for respective periods of 20, 15 and 51 games. Yet, the Braves still managed to compile a 49-33 record (third best in the entire league) and gain a spot in the playoffs once again.

Under Ramsay's direction, the Braves won 91 games while losing 73 during the last two seasons, and there is little reason to believe the pattern won't continue for many years to come.

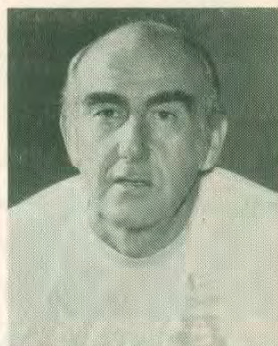

A quick check of Jack's lengthy coaching career reveals an NBA record of 286-288. In seven NBA seasons, he has had just two losing campaigns, his first with Buffalo (in 1972-73, a 21-61 record), and his last with Philadelphia (1971-72, a 30-52 mark). During the other five years, his teams have put together a composite mark of 235-175.

Before launching his professional career in 1966 as general manager of the Philadelphia 76ers, Ramsay served as head coach for 11 seasons at his alma mater, St. Joseph's College in Philadelphia. During that time, his teams won 234 games while losing just 72 en route to seven Big 5 titles and berths in 10 major post-season tournaments.

After leaving St. Joe's in 1966, Ramsay spent six seasons with the 76ers, initially as GM, and later as coach for three years. At one time, he was both general manager and head coach.

Ramsay holds the distinction as the only coach in the NBA with a doctorate (in education from the University of Pennsylvania, where he also received his master's).

Jack and his wife, Jean, live in Williamsville. Their five children include Susan, 25; John, 23; Sharon, 21; Christopher, 15 and Carolyn, 15.

GEORGE DADDARIO

Vice President of Sales

The Braves were indeed fortunate when in March of 1971 they enlisted the aid of George Daddario to help boost ticket sales and handle their vital promotional work.

A native Buffalonian, he is a well-known and popular figure on the Niagara Frontier as evidenced by the enthusiastic greeting he receives wherever his work takes him in the Buffalo area.

George brought a wealth of experience and expertise with him when he joined the Braves four years ago, and his tremendous dedication and tireless efforts on behalf of the ballclub are paying big dividends.

His work in such areas as season ticket and group ticket sales have helped the Braves become one of the NBA's attendance leaders.

A good-natured guy, who delights in telling sports stories, George played professional baseball for several years in the Detroit and Cleveland organizations. In five minor league seasons, he compiled a batting average of over .300. Throughout the years, he has kept up his relationships with former players. One of his closest friends in the baseball fraternity is Joe Garagiola.

George attended Buffalo's Kensington High School where he earned all-city honors four times in baseball and football. He also attended the University of Buffalo and Bryant & Stratton Institute (in Buffalo).

At one time, he served as general manager of minor league baseball teams in Guelph, Ont., and Olean, N. Y. From 1958-60 he was director of Public Relations and Promotions for the Buffalo Bisons of the International League. During that period, he was instrumental in helping the Bisons set minor league attendance records.

He also spent nine years at Bryant & Stratton in admissions work, with time out in 1964 and 1965 while working again with the Bisons.

George and his wife, Lucille, live in Williamsville with their six children, Donna, 20; Frank, 19; George Jr., 18; Paul, 14; Danny, 12 and Diane, 11.

TATES LOCKE

Assistant Coach, Chief Scout

Tates Locke joins the Braves' staff this season as Coach Jack Ramsay's assistant after compiling an impressive 159-127 record in 11 years as a college coach. He was Ramsay's personal choice to become the ball-club's assistant coach.

A defensive specialist who exudes a high degree of enthusiasm and dedication, Tates plys his talents on the basketball floor in dynamic fashion.

The 38-year old Batesville, Ind., native, enkindled a winning spirit in Clemson University's basketball program during the last five years as head coach, making a big winner out of a perennial loser.

His five-year record at the South Carolina school was 62-70, but the Tigers were 31-23 the last two seasons. Clemson tied North Carolina and North Carolina State for second place in the rugged Atlantic Coast Conference last winter and in the process handed conference champion Maryland one of its two defeats in ACC competition.

Clemson was 17-11 overall, and the victories were the most by the Tigers since 1967 and tied a school record for most wins in a season. Tates' record during the 1974-75 season earned him runner-up honors as coach of the year in the ACC. Under his direction, the Tigers were ranked among the nation's top 20 teams most of the season.

Tates began his varsity coaching career in 1963 at the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, guiding the Cadets to a 41-15 record in two seasons. And, for two consecutive years, the Cadets were semifinalists in the National Invitation Tournament.

After leaving West Point, Tates was the head coach at Miami (O.) University for four seasons where his teams won 56 while losing 42.

Both his Miami and West Point teams were ranked among the top 10 teams nationally in defense during the years he served as head coach at the respective schools.

The Ohio Wesleyan University graduate is married to the former Nancy Craig of Dayton, and they have two sons, John and Michael, and a daughter, Kathy.

RAY MELCHIORRE

Trainer, Traveling Secretary

Now in his fourth season with the Braves, Ray Melchiorre is one of the most respected trainers in professional sports.

Last year, his career gained a new dimension when he turned teacher while conducting athletic injuries courses at Canisius and the State University of New York at Buffalo.

His extensive background and desire to learn new techniques have proven especially valuable since coming to Buffalo as he and Coach Jack Ramsay collaborated on a team exercise and warmup program designed to minimize the possibility of injury.

Before arriving in Buffalo in 1972, the 37-year old Philadelphia, Pa., native was trainer of the former ABA Pittsburgh Condors for two seasons.

He also served for four years as head trainer and baseball coach at his alma mater, Bethel College in McKenzie, Tenn.

Ray has been honored several times by being selected as trainer for various all-star teams. Last summer he accompanied a group of NBA players to the Philippines for several all-star games. In 1970, he was trainer for the East-West All-American Basketball Game in Memphis, Tenn., and the Kentucky-Tennessee college all-star games in Nashville, Tenn., and Louisville, Ky.

Ray and his wife, Liz, reside in Williamsville. They have two children, Kathy, 7, and Lisa Joy, 2.

MIKE SHAW

Publicity Director

Mike is in his second year with the Braves having joined the ballclub in August 1974 after serving as News Bureau director and a journalism instructor at Niagara University for five years.

In the spring of 1972, the basketball guide which he designed, compiled and edited for Niagara's 1971-72 season, earned first place in the college brochure contest sponsored by the New York State Sportswriters Association. While at Niagara, he also authored several sports articles for sports magazines.

The 35-year old Rochester, N. Y. native attended St. Bonaventure University where he earned a bachelor's degree in journalism. During his undergraduate days there he was editor of the college newspaper and manager and trainer of the basketball team for three seasons.

He began his journalism career in June 1962 as state editor of the Binghamton Sun. Three months later, he joined the Niagara (N. Y.) Gazette as a sportswriter. Mike was assigned to the editorial department in June 1964 and was promoted to assistant city editor a year later.

He became the Gazette's Western New York editor in 1967, and remained in that position for two years until his appointment as Niagara University's News Bureau director in August 1969. At NU, he was in charge of general news and sports publicity and also taught news and feature writing courses.

Mike is a member of the Greater Buffalo International Chapter of the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi, and is the immediate past president of the St. Peter's Church Holy Name Society in Lewiston, N. Y.

He and his wife, the former Michele Berthot of Niagara Falls, have one son, Jeffrey, 5 and they reside in Lewiston.

IS THIS THE YEAR OF THE BRAVES?

by MIKE SHAW

Braves Publicity Director

The two best seasons in their young history immediately behind them, the Buffalo Braves again promise to be among the leading contenders for National Basketball Association honors during 1975-76.

As one of three 1970 expansion clubs, the Braves struggled to a composite 65-181 record during their first three NBA campaigns. They turned it all around the past two years compiling a 42-40 mark in 1973-74 and a 49-33 record last season, third best in the entire league.

In addition, Buffalo earned playoff berths both times and still remains as the only 1970 expansion team to make post-season competition.

The fact remains the Braves have shown remarkable progress in recent years, but still to be answered is how far this ballclub whose starting team averages just 26 years of age, can really go in the toughest basketball league in the world.

Will the Braves finally win a division, conference or league title during 1975-76?

The person best qualified to assess the ballclub's chances is Jack Ramsay, who has made an obvious impact since taking over the team's coaching duties three years ago.

"We have gotten better each season and we should be able to continue improving because the team has more poise and experience now," he remarked. "I realize there will be a leveling off point eventually, but we certainly haven't reached that stage yet," he added.

He acknowledged that super center Bob McAdoo will have to continue playing the great basketball that has brought him two straight scoring titles and NBA most valuable player honors last season, but several other factors also enter into the picture.

First of all, the Braves expect to retain their basic starting unit of McAdoo, forwards Jim McMillian and Gar Heard along with guards Randy Smith and Ernie DiGregorio. Among the top reserves will be veteran forward Jack Marin; center Dale Schlueter and rookie Tom McMillen, the 6-11 former Maryland All-American, who studied at the University of Oxford last year as a Rhodes Scholar. In backcourt, the Braves have excellent talent in Bob Weiss and Ken Charles. Newcomer Dick Gibbs, a 6-5 swingman, should be a valuable addition to the ballclub.

The starters will be playing together for the third straight season and Ramsay cited the importance of this. "The longer they play together as a unit the better they'll become," he explained.

Then, reflecting upon the 1974-75 season, Ramsay noted that having a healthy starting unit most of the year should make a considerable difference in the team's overall performance.

Last season, three-fifths of the Braves' starting team (Ernie DiGregorio, Gar Heard and Jim McMillian) was sidelined for extended periods of time because of injuries and various medical problems. Heard missed 15 games, McMillian 20 and Ernie D 51. Yet the team still managed to win 49 games and finish second behind Boston in the Atlantic Division.

DiGregorio's injury was probably the most critical. After tearing cartilage in his left knee in the Braves' sixth game, Ernie did not return to action until late January after missing 40 straight games. But, he never regained the form that earned him rookie of the year laurels the previous season, and sat out the final weeks of the campaign as well as the playoffs.

The brilliant little playmaker, whose performances as a rookie helped turn the Braves into an awesome offensive unit two seasons ago, is fully recovered from the knee surgery and that's good news for Ramsay's crew.

"To win any kind of championship in this league we're going to need better balanced scoring than we got last year, and with Ernie in the lineup we should get it," Ramsay explained.

"This season we expect to regain the active running and good ball movement we had two years ago and also improve on it," the Braves' coach added.

Tom McMillen's presence should help, too. "We'll probably use him at forward most of the time, but on occasion he may play a little in the center position," Ramsay said. McMillen is an excellent outside shooter who averaged 20.5 points a game in three seasons at Maryland while making nearly 56 per cent of his field goals.

Ramsay is optimistic about the new season, but is cautious when discussing just how well his team will fare.

"We've certainly got an excellent chance of making the playoffs again and we should be a stronger team overall. Yet, I'm not sure we can improve upon our record of last season. Forty-nine wins is an impressive figure and the competition will be a lot better this year," he observed.

Whatever the case, Buffalo fans and those in arenas around the league can expect another season of scintillating performances from Ramsay's Braves.

MEET THE BUFFALO BRAVES

14 KEN CHARLES

Position: Guard

Height: 6-3

Weight: 180

Age: 24

Born: July 10, 1951 Trinidad

High School: Brooklyn Prep

College: Fordham '73

Residence: Brooklyn

NBA Experience: Buffalo, 3rd year

How Acquired: 3rd Round, 1973 Draft

THIS SEASON: Confidence is the key to Kenny's game and he has plenty of it now after numerous brilliant performances during his second NBA season a year ago. Look for him to continue his rapid improvement as he makes a determined bid to become one of the league's outstanding young guards. He'll be in the thick of the battle for the No. 3 guard position.

LAST YEAR: When star playmaker Ernie DiGregorio was sidelined after six games because of a serious knee injury, Kenny found himself in the starting lineup as Coach Jack Ramsay looked for some much needed help from his talented corps of reserve guards. Time and time again, the young man from Trinidad came through in the clutch and he became a big favorite with the Buffalo fans. After playing just 693 minutes as a rookie, Kenny saw 1,690 minutes of action last season, the sixth highest total on the ballclub. He averaged 7.6 points a game, and was the third best free throw shooter, making better than 82 per cent of his attempts from the line. In addition, his quickness led to 87 steals, placing him fourth in that department on the team. His specialty is a nearly flat-trajectory jump shot and he connected on it better than 46 per cent of the time last season. He hit a career high 19 points in a game against Los Angeles.

CAREER HISTORY: In two NBA seasons, Kenny has scored 829 points, an average of 6.0 per game. He has made 47 per cent of his shots from the field and 77 per cent from the free throw line. An honorable mention All-American during his collegiate days at Fordham, Kenny finished his career there as the school's third highest scorer with 1,697 points, a 20.2 average for three varsity seasons. He established an all-time single season record of 679 points (24.3 avg.) as a senior.

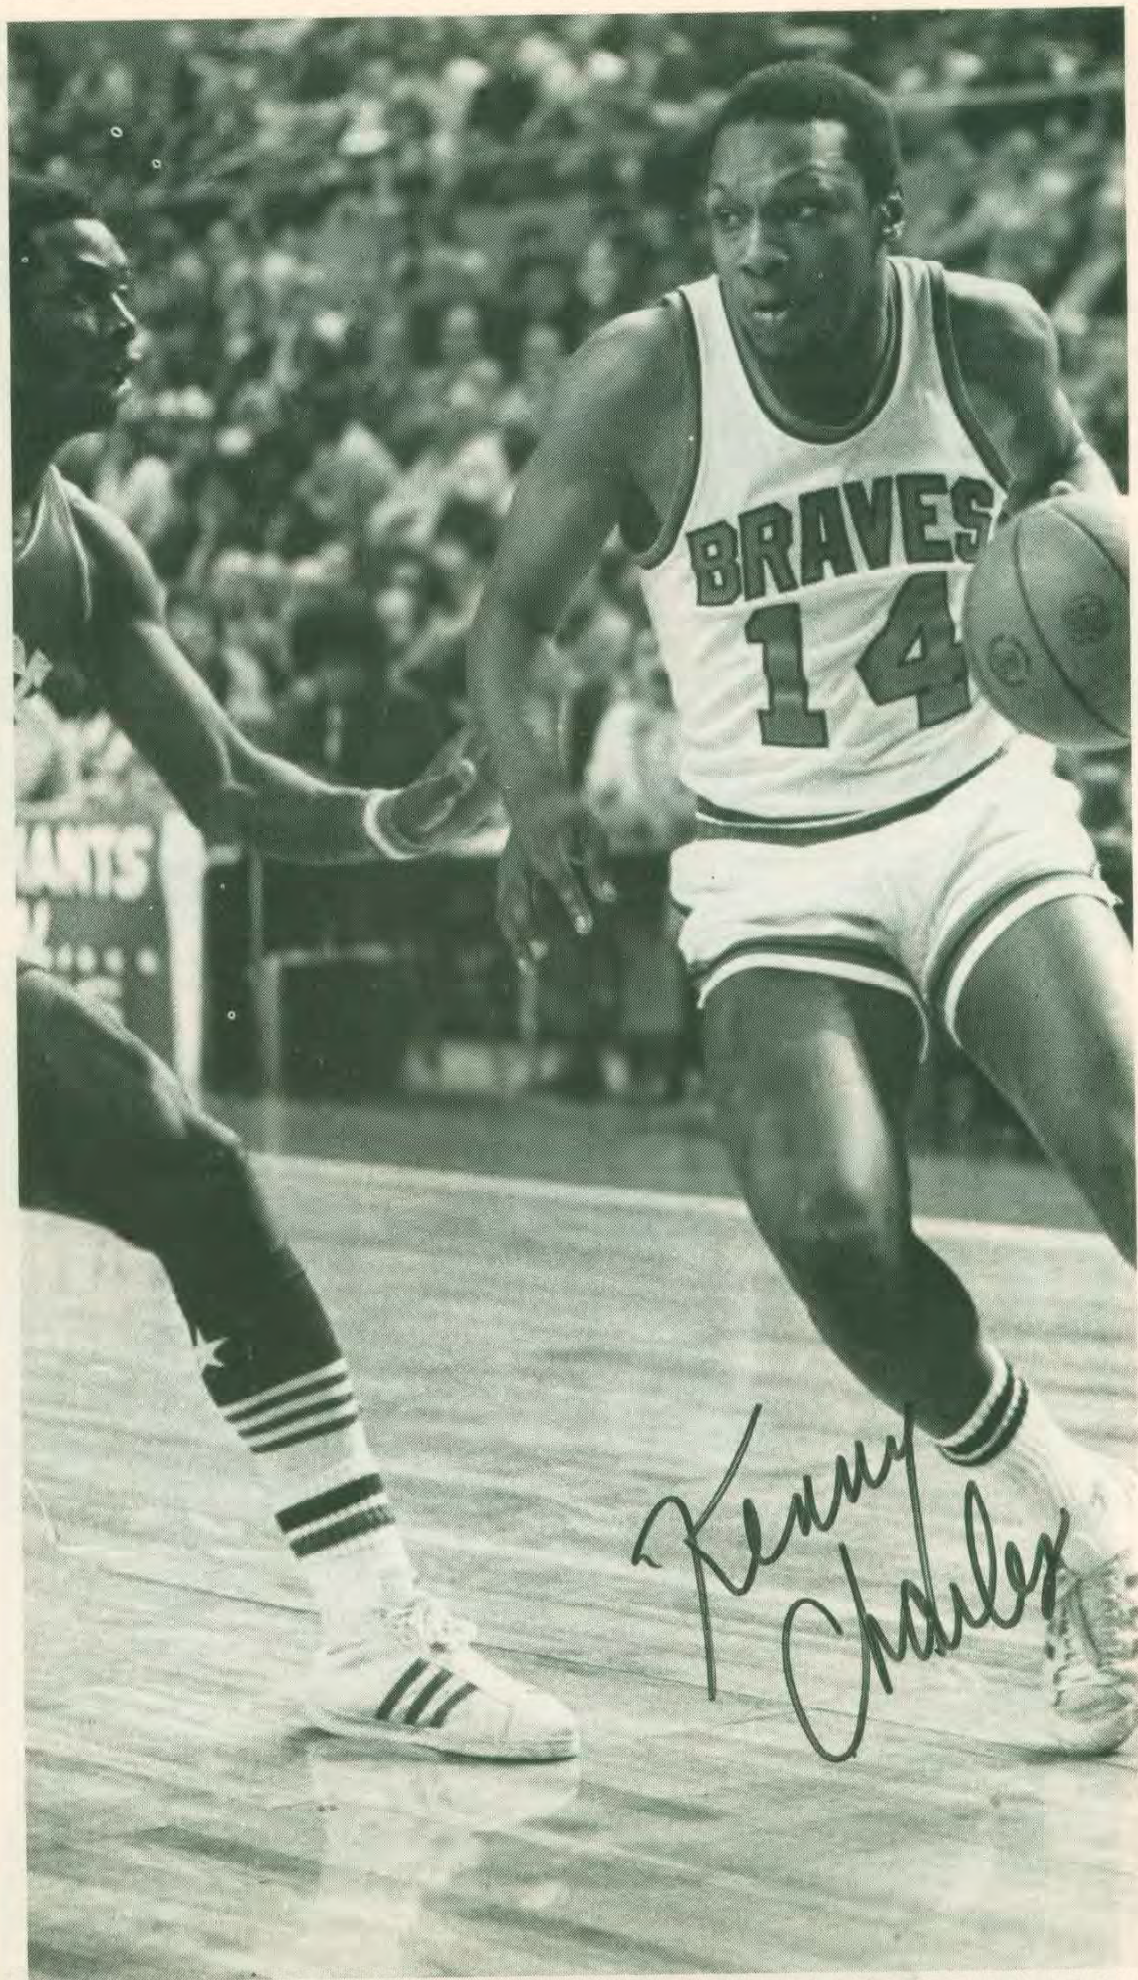

PERSONAL NOTES: A fun-loving guy, Kenny is probably the best quipster on the ballclub. His deep voice and glib comments make him a popular figure with his teammates. A bachelor, Kenny has his sights set on law school after he concludes his NBA career. During the past summer, he was a teammate of Phoenix's John Shumate in the famed Rucker League in New York City.

15 ERNIE DiGREGORIO

Position: Guard
Height: 6-0
Weight: 180
Age: 24
Born: Jan. 15, 1951 N. Providence
High School: North Providence
College: Providence '73
Residence: Providence, R. I.
NBA Experience: Buffalo, 3rd year
How Acquired: 1st Round, 1973 Draft

THIS SEASON: Ernie is completely recovered from the left knee injury which sidelined him after six games a year ago, and that's great news for the Braves who sorely missed his deft playmaking during the 1974-75 campaign and especially in the playoffs. A proud and determined young man, Ernie is ready to display once again the fabulous talents which earned him rookie of the year laurels two seasons ago. His return to action should prove a real hypo for the Braves' high-powered offense which had a tendency to become bogged down at various times last year. He led the league in assists (8.2 per game) and had the best free throw percentage (.902) as a rookie, and he should be in the running for both honors once again.

LAST YEAR: The 1974-75 season was the most frustrating Ernie has had to endure since he began playing organized ball some 10 or 15 years ago. He tore cartilage in his left knee in the sixth game of the season at Golden State and was sidelined until late January after undergoing corrective surgery. But, even after he had worked so hard to get back into shape, it became increasingly apparent, he was not the same Ernie D who had been so spectacular just a year before. He showed flashes of the brilliance which had helped the Braves become the highest scoring team in the NBA, but his play was inconsistent. Coach Jack Ramsay eventually decided it would be best for Ernie to sit out the rest of the season and the playoffs. It was a bitter pill for the little guard to swallow, but he handled his disappointment with class. During the playoff series with Washington, Ernie served as half-time analyst for Buffalo's WBEN-TV, and did a commendable job.

CAREER HISTORY: After averaging 15.2 points a game as a rookie, his lifetime average slipped to 13.2 as a result of his injury-plagued second season. His 663 assists as a rookie are a team record. An All-American at Providence College while averaging 20.5 points a game in three seasons, Ernie ranks as the school's all-time assists leader with 527 in 86 games. The Friars lost just 18 games while winning 68 during his career. Ernie's heroics in the 1973 series against the touring Russian Nationals won't soon be forgotten as he directed the U. S. squad to a 5-3 triumph in the eight-game set.

PERSONAL NOTES: Ernie ran a two-week basketball camp for kids at Deane Junior College in Franklin, Mass., last summer. He and his wife, Susan, have one daughter, Tara Rae, who celebrated her first birthday last June. Like many of the Braves, Ernie is fond of dogs, and at last count owned three.

21 DICK GIBBS

Position: Forward-Guard

Height: 6-5

Weight: 210

Age: 26

Born: Dec. 20, 1948 Ames, Iowa

High School: Ames

College: Texas-El Paso '71

Residence: El Paso, Texas

NBA Experience: Houston, Kansas City, Seattle, Washington, 5th year

How Acquired: Trade with Washington July 30, 1975 for 1st round draft choice and cash

THIS SEASON: Acquired from Washington last July, Dick should provide the Braves with good reserve strength at both the small forward and guard positions. A tough and aggressive competitor, Dick's defensive ability is his main forte. Coach Jack Ramsay feels he can be most effective in short term roles.

LAST YEAR: Playing on a team blessed with a plethora of talented guards and forwards, Dick saw limited action with the Bullets last season. Appearing in 59 games, he averaged 3.3 points. Dick made slightly under 39 per cent of his field goal attempts and hit 75 per cent from the free throw line.

CAREER HISTORY: Gibbs was Chicago's third round draft choice in 1971, but was traded to the San Diego (now Houston) Rockets a few weeks later. He played one season with Houston and part of another before going to Kansas City in 1972-73. He went to Seattle in May 1973 and then proceeded to record his best season as a pro. Appearing in 71 games two years ago, more than a dozen of them as a starter, Dick averaged 10.8 points, made better than 43 per cent of his shots from the field, and just over 80 per cent of his free throws. He had a career high 30 points and 14 rebounds in a game against Portland that season. Gibbs' lifetime scoring average is 5.4. An excellent free throw shooter, he has a lifetime percentage of .792. In August 1974 he went to the Bullets in a trade involving Archie Clark.

PERSONAL NOTES: An affable, hard-working guy, Dick has impressed Braves Coach Jack Ramsay with his toughness and great attitude. He attended the University of Texas-El Paso where he was a teammate of Kansas City's Nate Archibald.

24 GAR HEARD

Position: Forward

Height: 6-6

Weight: 226

Age: 27

Born: May 3, 1948 Hogansville, Ga.

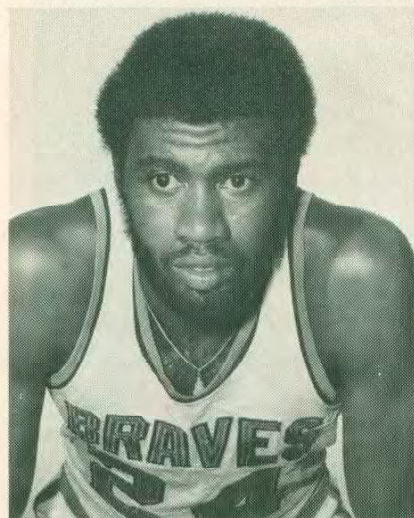

High School: Ethel Knight, LaGrange, Ga.

College: Oklahoma '70

Residence: Atlanta, Ga.

NBA Experience: Seattle, Chicago,
Buffalo, 6th Year

How Acquired: From Chicago with Kevin
Kunnert for John Hummer and 2nd Round draft choice, Sept. 10, 1973

THIS SEASON: Gar was rapidly becoming one of the top strong forwards in the NBA before knee and ankle injuries stalled his progress last season. He's determined to pick up where he left off two seasons ago when he averaged over 15 points and 11 rebounds a game. He has his sights set on a 1,000-rebound season, and barring injuries Gar could do it. Consistent performances from Heard are a must if the Braves are to challenge for league honors.

LAST YEAR: The 1974-75 campaign is one Gar probably would like to forget. After suffering torn ligaments in his left ankle shortly before Christmas, Gar's play was mediocre at best after his return to the lineup in late January. He also had some knee problems and the nagging injuries affected his overall play. Heard had been counted on to give Bob McAdoo some much needed help on the boards, but he averaged less than 10 rebounds a game. Yet, he still finished second on the team in that department. In addition, his field goal percentage dropped nearly five points from the previous season to .388, and he hit just .564 per cent of his free throws. Despite his physical problems, Garfield still managed an average of 1.79 blocked shots a game, ranking him ninth in the league in that category.

CAREER HISTORY: The former Oklahoma star who earned all Big-8 honors in his senior year, has proved to be one of the NBA's best rebounding strong forwards when not plagued by injuries. He came to the Braves in September 1973 after two years with Seattle and one in Chicago, and the ensuing season was the best of his pro career. He averaged 15.3 points a game (fourth best on the team); grabbed 11.7 rebounds per contest (10th in the league), and was sixth in blocked shots with a 2.84 average. In the playoffs vs. Boston that season, he was even more devastating, averaging 16.8 points and 14.7 rebound a game while hitting .457 from the field. Heard was a third round draft choice by Seattle in 1970.

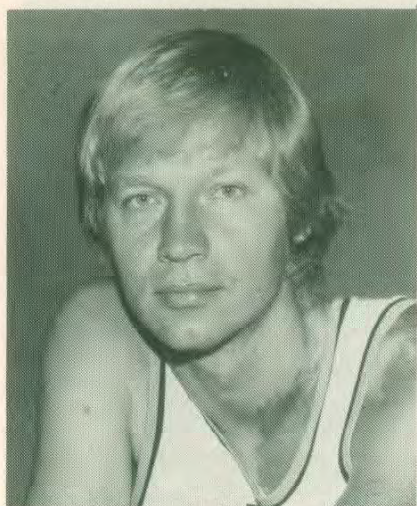

PERSONAL NOTES: Garfield is a bachelor and resides in Atlanta, Ga., in the off-season where he spends a good deal of time playing golf. A soft-spoken, good-natured guy, Gar is a music buff, and also enjoys watching the Flintstones cartoons on TV.

42 JACK MARIN

Position: Forward

Height: 6-6

Weight: 210

Age: 31

Born: Oct. 12, 1944 Sharon, Pa.

High School: Farrell, Pa.

College: Duke '66

Residence: Los Angeles

NBA Experience: Baltimore, Houston,
Buffalo, 10th Year

How Acquired: From Houston with Matt Guokas
for Kevin Kunnert and Dave Wohl

THIS SEASON: Jack has been a major contributor to the Braves' success during the last year and a half. In his role as Jim McMillian's backup at small forward, the Braves will again rely heavily on Jack's spectacular shooting and basketball savvy as they pursue the NBA championship.

LAST YEAR: If there were such an award as a team's second most valuable player, that honor most certainly would have gone to Jack Marin hands down last season. His value to the Braves was illustrated time and time again as he came off the bench to ignite rallies with his deadly shooting and tenacious all-round play. Perhaps most significant were his performances while filling in for Jim McMillian at small forward, and later on for Gar Heard at strong forward when the two frontcourt men were sidelined for lengthy periods of time. Were it not for his stellar play there is no way the Braves could have set a team record with 49 victories. He averaged 11.8 points a game to rank fourth in scoring on the team. In addition, Jack hit better than 45 per cent of his field goal attempts, and had the league's 7th best free throw percentage as he hit .869 of his attempts.

CAREER HISTORY: The former Duke All-American is one of the NBA's most colorful and exciting stars. He can whip the home fans into a frenzy with a flurry of long-range lefthanders while demoralizing the opposition with near impossible shots. In nine NBA seasons, he has scored 11,329 points (15.8 average) while making 47 per cent of his shots from the field. Jack's lifetime free throw percentage is an excellent .843. He was Baltimore's first round draft choice in 1966 after an illustrious career at Duke where he ranks eighth on the school's all-time scoring list. He played six seasons with the Bullets before going to Houston in a trade for Elvin Hayes in June 1972. Jack has been with Buffalo since Feb. 1, 1974. While still with Baltimore, Jack recorded his career high of 42 points in a game at Houston Nov. 7, 1971. Marin played in both the 1972 and 1973 all-star games, and has been involved in the playoffs six times, averaging 15.4 ppg. for 48 games.

PERSONAL NOTES: Jack and his wife Robin reside in Los Angeles during the off-season. An excellent golfer, Jack spent much of the summer on the links playing in various tournaments. He was a chemistry major at Duke where he carried a B average. Jack also has completed a year of law school.

11 BOB McADOO

Position: Center

Height: 6-10

Weight: 215

Age: 24

Born: Sept. 25, 1951 Greensboro, N.C.

High School: Ben L. Smith, Greensboro

College: North Carolina '73

Residence: Greensboro, N.C.

NBA Experience: Buffalo, 4th year

How Acquired: 1st Round, 1972 Draft

Awards Last Season: NBA Scoring leader (2nd straight year); CBS Player of the Year (2nd straight year) NBA Most Valuable Player; Sporting News NBA Player of the Year; 1st Annual Bronze Buffalo Award; Vitalis Most Popular Player, Seven Crowns of Sports Pro Basketball Award; NBA First Team All-Star.

THIS SEASON: After two consecutive seasons of brilliant play, Bob has truly established himself as one of professional basketball's greatest superstars. Yet, one goal continues to elude him and his teammates — the NBA championship. That will be his principle target this time. If the three-year veteran who is only 24, can maintain his prolific scoring and improve his defensive skills, there's no telling how far the Braves can go in 75-76.

LAST YEAR: A homemade banner placed on the wall in Buffalo Memorial Auditorium last winter described Bob McAdoo as "MAC-nificant." That sums up very well the type of year Bob had. For the second straight season he won league scoring honors with a 34.5 average, and was accorded a flock of honors including the NBA's Most Valuable Player award. That prize was especially meaningful to the quiet young man from Greensboro, N.C. because it came from his peers in the NBA. Among other awards were his second straight selection as CBS Player of the Year; Sporting News Player of the Year, and his first team selection on the NBA's annual all-star squad. Along with his second straight scoring crown, McAdoo had the fifth best field goal percentage (.512); was fourth in rebounding (14.1), and finished sixth in blocked shots (2.12). McAdoo's 1974-75 point total of 2,831 is the highest by an NBA player since Wilt Chamberlain tallied 2,948 in 1963-64. Mac also earned one other distinction during the 1974-75 campaign. He played 3,539 minutes (43.2 avg.), considerably more than anyone else.

CAREER: Though only in his fourth NBA season, Mac has already won more honors than most players do in an entire career. To date he has captured two scoring titles, the rookie of the year award (in 1973), MVP award, two CBS Player of the Year awards, and field goal percentage crown, among others. His NBA career scoring average is now at 27.7. He currently is Buffalo's all-time leading scorer and rebounder.

PERSONAL NOTES: Bob and his wife, Brenda have a two-year old son, Robert III. McAdoo is very fond of dogs and owns three Afgans. He passed up his senior year at North Carolina to sign a hardship contract with the Braves in 1972.

52 TOM McMILLEN

Position: Forward-Center
Height: 6-11
Weight: 215
Age: 23
Born: May 26, 1952, Mansfield, Pa.
High School: Mansfield, Pa.
College: Maryland '74
Residence: Washington, D.C.
NBA Experience: 1st year
How Acquired: 1st Round, 1974 Draft

THIS SEASON: Coach Jack Ramsay plans to bring Tom along slowly, using him mostly at the strong forward position. He will have to work on his defense, and there will be a period of adjustment, but Tom has the intelligence, desire and talent to become an outstanding NBA player.

LAST YEAR: McMillen studied at the University of Oxford in England as a Rhodes Scholar, but also played twice a week in Italy for a team in Bologna where he averaged about 32 points a game.

CAREER HISTORY: Tom was a three-time All-American at the University of Maryland where he established an all-time scoring mark of 1,807 points in three varsity seasons. The Mansfield, Pa., native also owns Maryland career records for most field goals — 699; best scoring average — 20.5; most free throws made — 409, and best field goal percentage — .555. Among other records he holds are the most points for a Maryland sophomore — 667. The former Maryland star also grabbed 859 rebounds in three seasons, an average of nearly 10 a game. While he was on the varsity the Terps won 73 of 90 games and had a 19-4 mark in post-season play. McMillen won the MVP award during the 1972 National Invitation Tournament at Madison Square Garden won by Maryland. The only Rhodes scholar in Maryland history, Tom also played for the United States basketball squad during the 1972 Olympics.

PERSONAL NOTES: At Maryland Tom compiled a 3.8 grade point average out of a possible 4.0 as a pre-med major. He will complete his studies at Oxford during the next two or three summers with emphasis on politics, philosophy and economics. In addition to earning All-America honors for his basketball prowess, Tom also was an Academic All-American for three years. At one time he served on former President Richard Nixon's 15-member Council on Physical Fitness and Sports. Tom is single.

5 JIM McMILLIAN

Position: Forward

Height: 6-5

Weight: 225

Age: 27

Born: Mar. 11, 1948 Raeford, N.C.

High School: Jefferson H.S., Brooklyn, N.Y.

College: Columbia '70

Residence: East Amherst, N. Y.

NBA Experience: Los Angeles, Buffalo, 6th yr.

How Acquired: From Los Angeles in trade for Elmore Smith, Sept. 17, 1973

THIS SEASON: An appendectomy and knee problems plagued Jim last year, but look for him to regain the form that has made him one of the finest small forwards in the NBA. With Ernie D back in the lineup, Jim will again become much more involved in the offense than he was a year ago. Not only is he an exceptional shooter and defensive player, but Jim's leadership is an intangible which cannot be measured when assessing his overall value to the Braves. As has been noted so many times in the past Jim is the "heart" of the ballclub.

LAST YEAR: McMillian was enjoying one of the best years of his NBA career before he was hospitalized with appendicitis after the Braves' 13th game. At the time he was averaging 17.5 points and 7.5 rebounds a game and had the ballclub's best field goal and free throw percentages. Jim missed 16 games and also was out of action for four more later on with a knee ailment. The interruptions hurt his game somewhat, but he still wound up with the third best scoring and rebounding averages on the team. In addition, his field goal percentage of .499 was the 10th best in the league. Ironically, just the night before his appendectomy, Jim scored 20 points, grabbed nine rebounds, was a tiger on defense as he completely outplayed Boston's John Havlicek in a 112-100 victory by Buffalo over the Celtics at Providence. It was probably McMillian's best game of the season.

CAREER HISTORY: Jim ranks among the top forwards in the NBA. A fine shooter (lifetime FG percentage of .478), he is an excellent defensive player, moves well without the ball and is a solid "team" man. In five NBA seasons, he has averaged just under 16 points a game while shooting an impressive 82.8 per cent from the free throw line. He was the Los Angeles Lakers' top draft choice in 1970 after earning All-America honors two straight years at Columbia University. Jim was a starter by his second season after a brilliant performance during the 1970-71 playoffs when he averaged 15.1 ppg. while subbing for the injured Elgin Baylor.

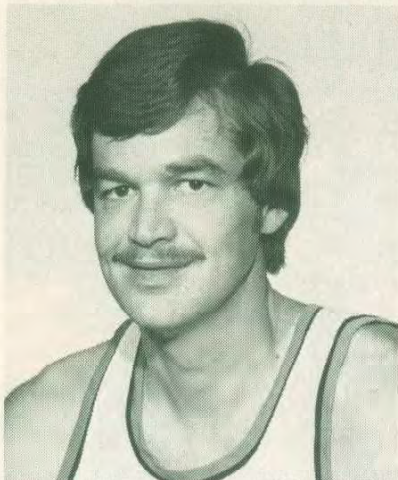

PERSONAL NOTES: Jim and his wife Alexis live in East Amherst where they purchased a home a year ago. A new addition to the McMillian household in recent months is a Doberman Pinscher named Morgan. The McMillians took advantage of the great weather in Buffalo last summer to play a lot of tennis. Jim also attended graduate school at the University of Buffalo where he is studying for a master's in business administration.

54 DALE SCHLUETER

Position: Center

Height: 6-10

Weight: 235

Age: 29

Born: Nov. 12, 1945 Tacoma, Wash.

High School: George Washington, Denver

College: Colorado State '67

Residence: Lake Oswego, Ore.

NBA Experience: San Francisco, Portland, Philadelphia, Atlanta, Buffalo, 8th yr.

How Acquired: Purchased from Atlanta, Aug. 29, 1974

THIS SEASON: A rugged, physical player, Dale may be considered by some teams as the Braves' "enforcer." He'll be a spot performer this year as a backup to Bob McAdoo in the center position. And, as was the case on occasion last year, Dale may move into center for a few minutes in certain games with McAdoo taking over the strong forward position.

LAST YEAR: Schlueter became a favorite of the Braves' fans because of his toughness and courage. He saw considerable playing time when forwards Jim McMillian and Gar Heard were sidelined for lengthy periods of time. He proved to be a good defender, set some bone-rattling screens and took good percentage shots. The latter was reflected in the fact he connected on 92 of 178 attempts from the field or .517. Dale also demonstrated his ability to hit the open man and collected 104 assists. He surpassed that total only twice before in his seven NBA seasons. While playing about 12½ minutes a game last year, Dale scored 268 points, a 3.5 average.

CAREER HISTORY: Since entering the league in 1968, Dale has proven not only to be a tough competitor, but a very unselfish one as well. If sent into a game to rebound and play defense, that's exactly what he does. And, if he should score a few points along the way, so much the better. Dale had played in 466 NBA games going into this season while carrying a scoring average of 6.1. In addition, his career field goal percentage is .503. Dale was drafted by the San Francisco Warriors in the sixth round of the 1967 draft after starring at Colorado State. He played there two seasons, spent two with Portland, and one in Philadelphia and Atlanta before coming to the Braves before last season. He had his best year in 1971-72 at Portland, averaging 11.7 points a game while shooting .525 from the field. His 285 assists was the third highest total among the league's centers.

PERSONAL NOTES: Despite his tenacious style of play, Dale is a very affable guy off the court. He enjoys speaking to groups and has done considerable work in connection with charitable events and programs. He, his wife Debbie and their daughter Kirsten, 3, live in Lake Oswego, Ore. in the off-season. Both are real estate agents there and also enjoy water skiing on the beautiful Oregon waters.

9 RANDY SMITH

Position: Guard

Height: 6-3

Weight: 180

Age: 26

Born: Dec. 12, 1948 Bellport, Long Island

High School: Bellport H.S., Brookhaven, N.Y.

College: Buffalo State '71

Residence: Buffalo

NBA Experience: Buffalo, 5th year

How Acquired: 7th Round Draft Choice, 1971

THIS SEASON: With Ernie D back in the lineup look for Randy to be even more effective than he was last year. That will take some doing because the 1974-75 campaign was his best as a professional. Braves fans can once again look forward to Randy and Ernie combining on the fastbreak to give the ballclub those easy baskets so prevalent two years ago when Buffalo led the NBA in offense. Randy has yet to play in an all-star game, but he could get his chance this time if the four-year veteran continues to amaze fans around the league with his spectacular play.

LAST YEAR: There was speculation that when Ernie D was struck down with torn cartilage in his left knee last season, Randy's play might suffer. Quite the contrary. In addition to assuming a new role as playmaker much of the time, Randy hit a career high 1,456 points (17.8) average while shooting better than 48 per cent from the field. He finished with the fourth best assist average in the league (6.5 per game), and now ranks as Buffalo's all-time assist leader with 1,528. Perhaps most significantly, Randy suddenly became one of the Braves' better free throw shooters. After connecting on just 71 per cent of his attempts the previous year, Randy was accurate 80 per cent of the time last season. That's a far cry from the poor 62 per cent he shot on free throws as a rookie. Another noteworthy item is the fact that Randy now has played in 267 consecutive NBA games. Only JoJo White of Boston has a longer streak among active players.

CAREER HISTORY: Persons who watched Randy Smith as a rookie during the 1971-72 season are amazed at his progress. Not only has he adjusted to the pro style of ball, but the former Buffalo State athlete who earned All-America honors in three sports (basketball, soccer and track), now ranks as one of the finest all-round guards in the NBA. He still exhibits traces of the wildness that marked his play as a rookie, but for the most part, Randy has his game under control now. In four NBA seasons, he has averaged 15.4 points a game while making 47.5 per cent of his field goal attempts and 71.8 per cent from the free throw line. Tremendous speed, quickness and leaping ability are his trademarks, but so, too, is durability. He has not missed a regular season game since his rookie year. Randy holds the Braves' record for most games played during a career — 322, and most minutes — 10,443. Including playoffs and regular season contests, Randy's consecutive game streak is now at 280.

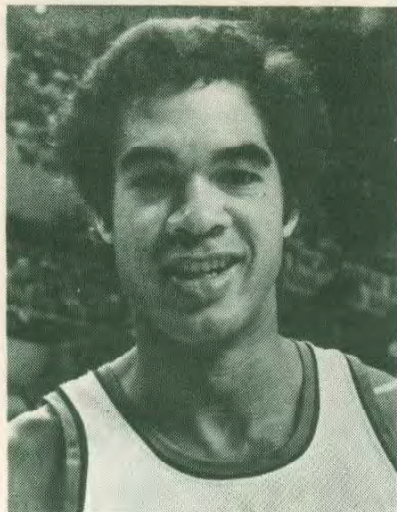

PERSONAL NOTES: Randy spent most of the past summer in Buffalo where he conducted numerous clinics for youngsters. He also worked closely with the Buffalo Urban League. He is the team's fashion plate and rates among the best dressed athletes in the NBA. Randy is a bachelor and lives in Buffalo year round.

Born: July 1, 1943, Philadelphia, Pa.

High School: West Catholic Boys (Philadelphia, Pa.)

College: Villanova '65

Residence: Atlanta, Ga.

NBA Experience: St. Louis, Chicago, Philadelphia, Atlanta, Buffalo, 11th year

How Acquired: Purchased from Atlanta Jan. 8, 1975

THIS SEASON: Jim, now in his 11th NBA campaign, will be used mainly in reserve roles as a strong forward. He and rookie Tom McMillen will vie for the backup slot behind starting strong forward Gar Heard.

LAST YEAR: The Braves were in serious trouble last season when Jim joined the ballclub in early January. Sidelined with torn ligaments in his left ankle was power forward Gar Heard, whom the Braves had relied upon to help Bob McAdoo on the boards. With Gar out of the lineup, Buffalo lost five of eight games. Washington's arrival resulted in a complete turnabout as the team dropped another game before winning seven in a row. The streak was the Braves' second longest of the season. Washington did his job well as he shot for a high percentage, played strong games on both the offensive and defensive boards and worked hard on defense. His playing time dropped considerably once Heard returned to action, but it was obvious Jim had given the ballclub a real lift when it was most needed. His contributions were important for a number of reasons. Buffalo never would have won a club record 49 games if Washington hadn't been acquired from Atlanta early in January. Not only did he play well at the strong forward position, but his presence in the lineup gave Coach Jack Ramsay an opportunity to rest some of the other big men who were showing signs of fatigue because of increased playing time due to injuries to key personnel up front.

CAREER HISTORY: In 10 NBA seasons, Jim has proven to be a very capable performer. Not only does he rebound and run well, he is deadly from the baseline and a good shot-blocker. A 1965 graduate of Villanova, Washington was a first round draft choice by St. Louis (now Atlanta) that year. After playing one season with the Hawks he spent four years in Chicago, and more than two seasons with Philadelphia where he played for the Braves' current coach, Jack Ramsay. He was traded to Atlanta in November 1971 and remained with the Hawks until coming to Buffalo Jan. 8, 1975 for cash and a future draft choice. During his career, Jim has scored 8,168 points (10.6 average); has 6,636 rebounds, and owns a lifetime field goal percentage of .449. Only twice during his 10 years in the league has the team on which Jim played failed to make the playoffs.

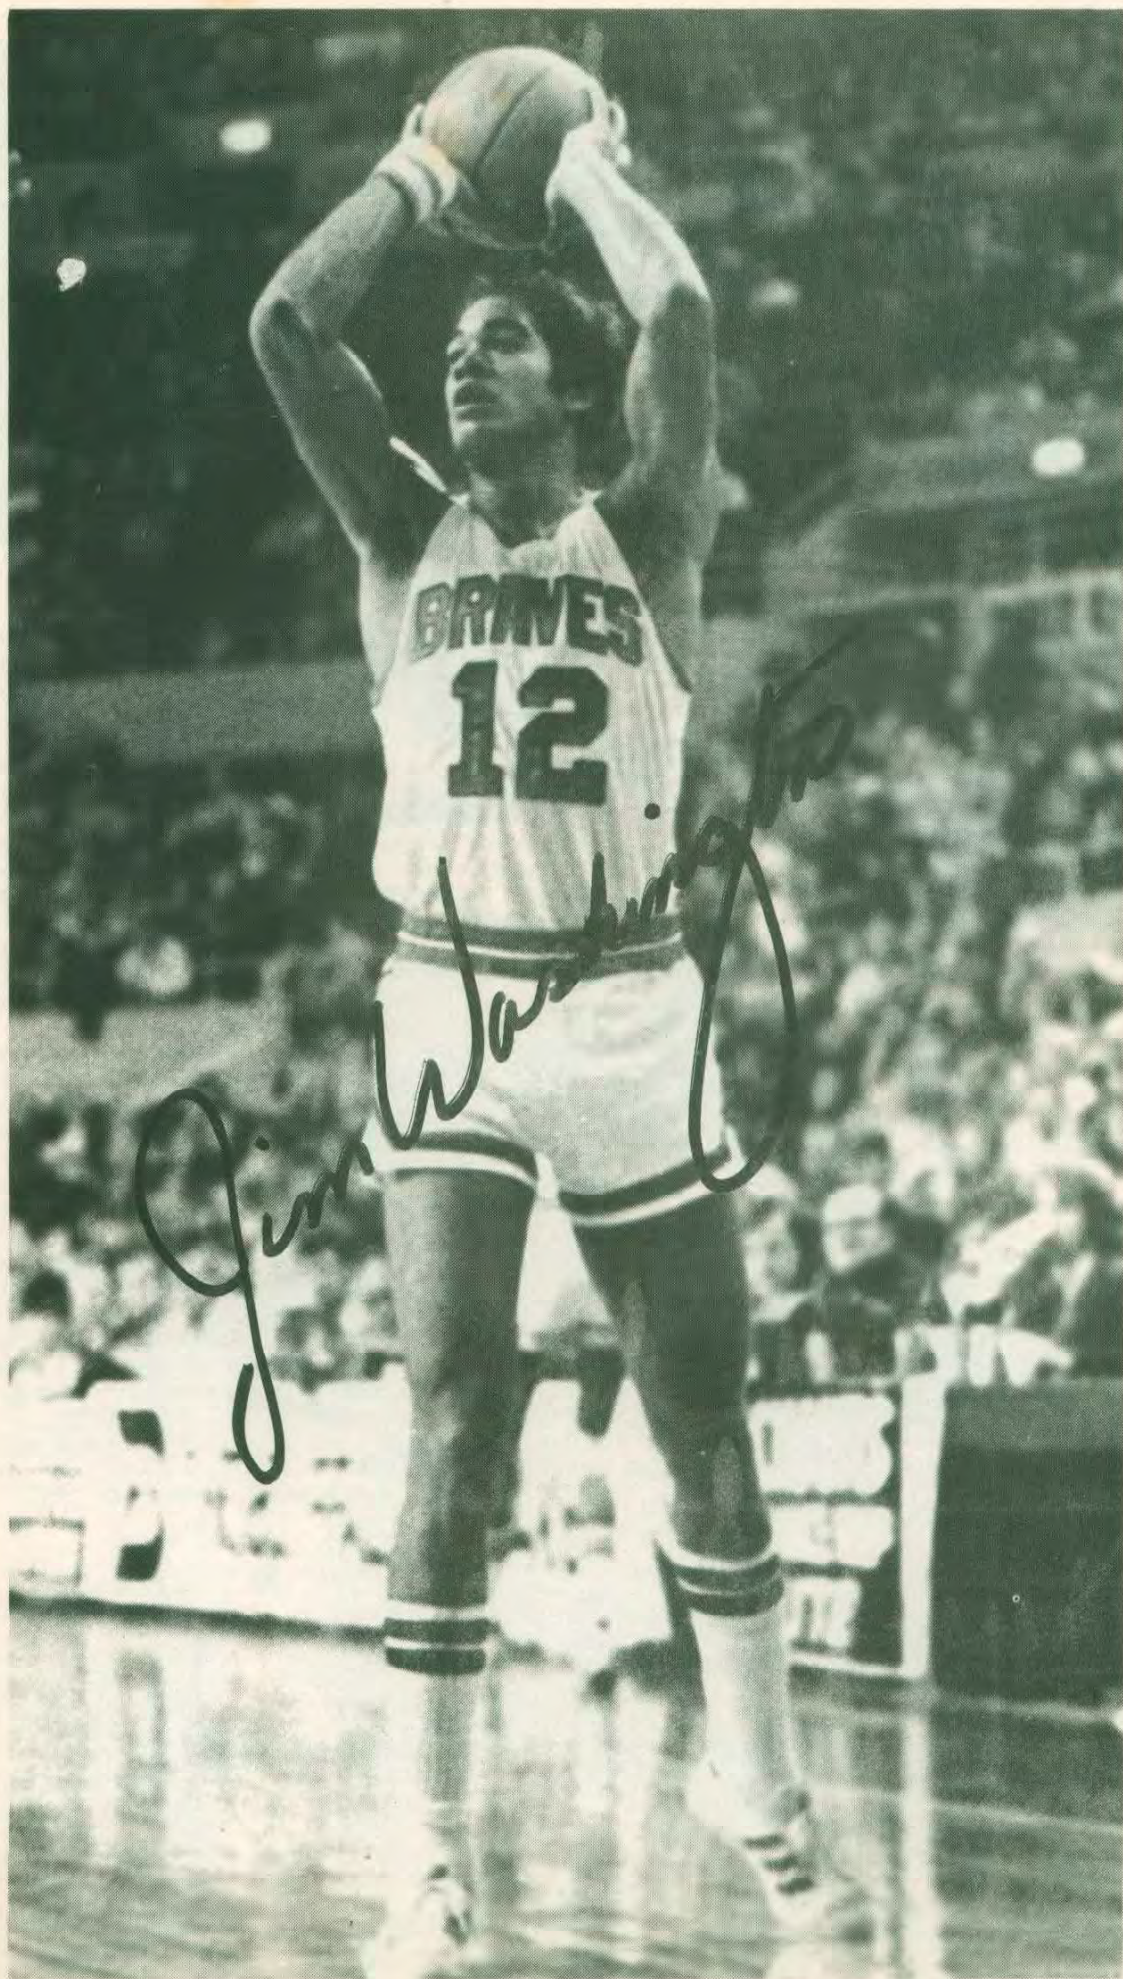

PERSONAL NOTES: Jim resides in Atlanta during the off-season. He and his wife, Edna, have two daughters, Kelly, 10 and Tiffany, 6.

8 BOB WEISS

Position: Guard

Height: 6-3

Weight: 185

Age: 33

Born: May 7, 1942, Easton, Pa.

High School: Athens, Pa.

College: Penn State '65

Residence: Amherst, N.Y.

NBA Experience: Philadelphia, Seattle, Milwaukee
Chicago, Buffalo, 11th year

How Acquired: From Chicago Sept. 4, 1974 for
Matt Guokas and two 2nd round draft choices

THIS SEASON: A 10-year veteran, now in his second season with the Braves, Bob still ranks among the top defensive and playmaking guards in the league. His experience and ability to play well in clutch situations make him an ideal backup for Ernie DiGregorio. In most situations he probably will be the first guard to come into the game.

LAST YEAR: Originally, Braves Coach Jack Ramsay had expected to use Bob as Ernie's replacement in certain situations, but that changed when DiGregorio was sidelined with a knee injury. Weiss rotated with Lee Winfield and Ken Charles as Randy Smith's mate in backcourt most of the season. He appeared in 76 contests, averaging about 3½ points a game. Though his shooting fell off (he hit just 39 per cent of his field goal attempts), Weiss continued to do well from the free throw line, making 80.6 per cent of his attempts. His 260 assists placed him second on the ballclub behind Randy. Weiss' shooting improved considerably in the playoffs as he made nearly 48 per cent of his shots from the field. His ability to come through in the clutch was demonstrated very early last season when he sank two free throws in the waning seconds giving the Braves a one-point victory over Chicago, the team he had been with for over five years before coming to Buffalo.

CAREER HISTORY: Beginning with the 1967-68 season, his third in the NBA, Weiss gradually emerged as one of the most consistent guards in the league. Never a prolific scorer, Bob's forte is defense and the ability to run an offense. Drafted by Philadelphia in the third round in 1965, Bob played in a total of 13 games over seasons before going to Seattle in the 1967 expansion draft. Appearing in 82 games during the 1967-68 campaign, he averaged 9.7 points, made 84 per cent of his free throws and was credited with 342 assists. When the 1968 expansion draft rolled around, Weiss again was up for grabs and this time he found himself in Milwaukee. After playing only a few games for the Bucks, he was traded to Chicago along with Bob Love in exchange for Flynn Robinson. For the next five and a half years, Weiss played an average 27 minutes per contest despite being a reserve most of the time. In 10 previous seasons he has appeared in 655 games, averaging 8.6 points per contest. The Penn State graduate came to the Braves in September 1974 for Matt Guokas and two future draft choices. While he was with Chicago, he played in 538 consecutive games to rank as the league's "iron man." An injury late in the 1973-74 season ended the streak.

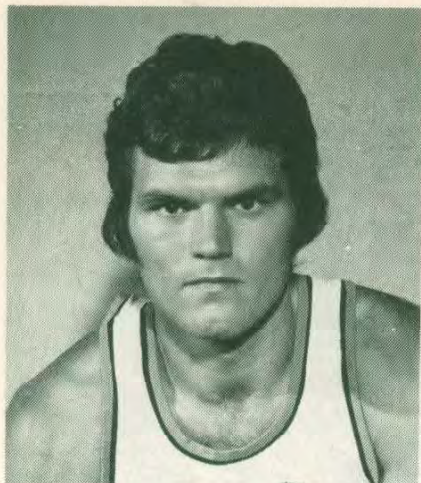

PERSONAL NOTES: Bob, his wife, Bobbi, and their two daughters reside in Williamsville the year round. One of his favorite pastimes is playing chess. He is easily the best on the team and ranks among the top chess players in the league. Bob also is a pretty fair amateur magician.
